The reproduction of some or all of the above on an electronic medium of whatever nature is strictly prohibited without the express prior agreement of Terre Armée.

Terre Armée authorises the displaying, copying and printing of the texts and documents subject to compliance with the following conditions:

- distribution solely for the purposes of information,
- distribution for non-profit making purposes,
- maintenance of the integrity of the reproduced documents: no alterations or modifications of any kind,
- any full or part copy of the documents must include a clear and legible statement of the source in the following form: "this document is taken from the Terre Armée Internet site: www.terre-armee.com – the rights of reproduction are reserved and limited". The Internet address must be included in the statement.

Any reproduction, use or distribution of any copies for any other purpose is expressly prohibited and will be subject to legal action, including under criminal law. Any link or "framing" of the site is strictly prohibited and thus none of the elements shown on a page of the site can be partially or wholly distributed on, transferred to or inserted in any other Internet site, nor be used for the creation of derivative products, without the express agreement of Terre Armée.

Terre Armée makes no statements, nor makes any guarantees, explicit or implicit, concerning this site or the information on it. Without limiting the scope of the foregoing, Terre Armée does not guarantee that this site or the information it contains is free of errors or that it complies with any production or quality criteria whatever.

Terre Armée does not accept any implicit guarantees, including and without being limiting, guarantees concerning a merchandisable quality, the absence of infringement, the security and the reliability of any statements or photographs.

If one of the preceding provisions cannot be applied for any reason, the other provisions shall continue to apply.
